

Skills Bootcamp in Data Technician Programme overview

The world today is powered by data and organisations across the UK have come to rely on data-driven insights as a way to guide their organisational and service strategies. Our Data Technician Skills Bootcamps programme focuses on teaching the technical skills required for you to start your career in data and boost your employability skills.

Fully funded by the government and available to new and existing employees and created in part as a response to the pandemic, Skills Bootcamps are part of the Lifetime Skills Guarantee and Plan for Jobs. Previous experience isn't necessary, but you must have an active interest in working in data.

Skills Bootcamp Success Story

Gemma Casey - Learner on our Data Technician programme

“After reviewing I thought the course sounded great. In particular, I liked that we would be trained to an industry standard and have 6 months of support after the course ended when job searching.

Also, as the course is government funded, I thought this was an opportunity too good to miss!”

The Bootcamp has helped me on my career journey”
